Rev. Henry J. Crepeau
Hamlet Street
Woonsocket

Dear Father Crepeau,

I am very disturbed at the news of your recent letter. I had received a letter from Evelyn which was forwarded to me from Providence. But there was no indication in it of this new turn of events.

If you think it alright, you may forward this letter to her. That is why I have omitted the address.

I know I am in no position to influence her judgment. She has been through an indescribably lonely and hard ordeal. As she writes, it cannot be measured in terms of the money she received.

I am appealing to her from the good of the baby. No amount of affection he may receive at Pentth Ambay can make up for a normal family life. He will always be "different" from his playmates. And he is likely to be showered with a possessiveness to make up for his being different. Almost invariably a child brought up as Evelyn is bringing him up puts him at a severe psychological disadvantage when he grows up.

Thank you sincerely for all you have done.

Respectfully yours,
Arthur Graham
